MERRY CHRISTMAS

Welcome to Chokoloskee

Home of hard stories, soft sunsets, and the best kind of trouble.

Chokoloskee is a small island at the very edge of the Everglades, connected to Everglades City by a short bridge and surrounded by quiet water and backcountry routes. Though tiny in size, it has one of the richest stories in Southwest Florida. Early settlers built a remote frontier community here long before roads reached the region, giving the island a rugged heritage that still shapes its character today.

At the center of that story is the historic Smallwood Store, a 1906 trading post that served as a lifeline for families, fishermen, and travelers navigating the Ten Thousand Islands. Local folklore about plume hunters, smugglers, and the notorious Edgar J.

Watson adds a layer of mystery that visitors still find fascinating.

Today, Chokoloskee is peaceful, welcoming, and known for its exceptional fishing and quiet, laid-back charm.

Merry Christmas everyone, well for the last couple of weeks the fishing has been ok.

Seems like the further south you go the more fish have been seen. There have been black drum, & sea trout showing up around the mid & outer Islands using Live shrimp on a float or on a knocker rig. A few Redfish have been showing up in the same areas using the same bait along with cut mullet or ladyfish.

Snook season is closed until 3/1/26. Anglers are catching small snook on fly's and plastic's.

Tarpon are around as well. Fly guides have been jumping a few everyday along with bait fishermen, using cut baits & plastics. Off shore the red snappers are around but only open on the weekends until the end of the year.

Download the app it's Fishrules.com, it's Free & updated every time you check the app. It's very accurate for all species, so with the cool weather comes the kayaks and canoes on the water.

Please slow down for them and give them little or no wake.

Remember you are responsible for your wake.

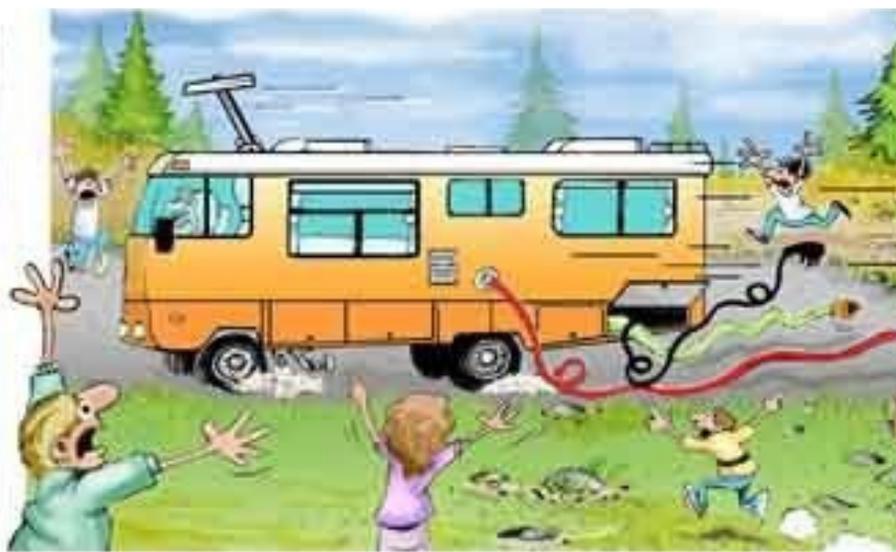

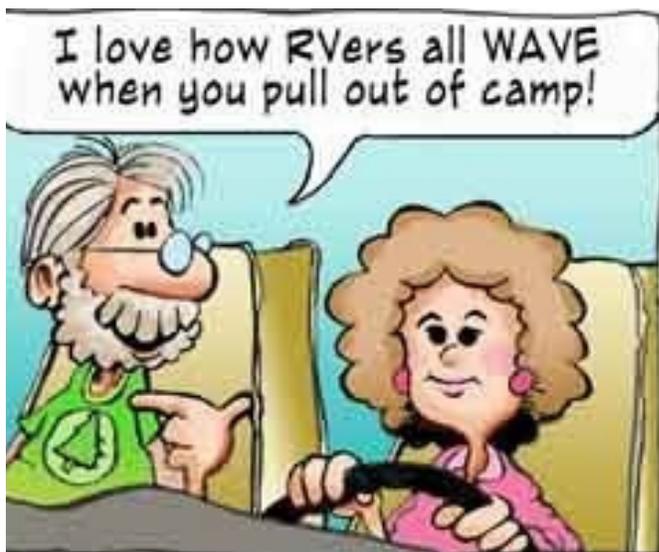

Be kind and smile it goes a long way.

Enjoy the holidays with family and friends.

Enjoy our 10,000 Islands and all her beauty

P.S. Our resident osprey's have laid their eggs check them out across from unit
