HALLOWEEN

Halloween began over 2,000 years ago as the ancient Celtic festival of Samhain in Ireland, Scotland, and the Isle of Man. Celts celebrated the Festival of Samhain on October 31 to mark the end of the harvest and the start of winter. People believed the boundary between the living and the dead blurred on this night. They lit large bonfires and wore disguises or costumes to hide from roaming spirits. In the 8th century, Pope Gregory III set November 1 as All Saints' Day (All Hallows' Day) to honor saints and martyrs. The night before became known as All Hallows' Eve. Over time, this Christian evening blended with older Celtic folk customs. Irish and Scottish immigrants brought these traditions to North America in the 19th century, especially during the potato famine. Immigrants carved scary faces into turnips or potatoes. In America, they used native pumpkins instead, creating the modern jack-o'-lantern.
